The Men Quarreled at Summers's House, with the Result that Horne Is Dead and the Other a Fugitive.

HORNE STARTED THE TROUBLE

SLIGHTING REMARKS MADE BY HIM ABOUT SUMMERS'S FAMILY.

Murderer Escapes from the Scene of His Crime, but the Police Are Hot on the Trail.

Four blows from a hatchet in the hands of his blacksmith brother-in-law laid John Horne of Twenty-third and Hovey streets on the floor of the former's home with four ghastly gashes in his head, and with the cry "I've killed him! I've killed him!" William Summers, the murderer, grasped his hat and coat and fled from the house into the cover of darkness at 9 o'clock last night. Up to a late hour this morning he had succeeded in eluding the police, who were hot on his trail.

Summers lives with his wife in rooms over a grocery store at 1606 Martindale avenue and according to the story told by Mrs. Summers, who was the only witness of the affray, the action of her husband in staining his hands with her brother's blood was merely an outbreak of his vicious nature and entirely uncalled for as selfdefense. Her brother, Horne, she says, called at the house early in the evening and being in an intoxicated condition soon started an argument with her husband, resulting in the fight which ended in the murder. Horne said several exasperating things about Summer's family, it is said, and Summers, disregarding the drunken condition of his brother-in-law, stepped to the rear room and secured a hatchet which he laid on the kitchen table, ready to use in case of an emergency. One word led to another, until here than before. blows were struck.

THE DEADLY HATCHET. In a drunken frenzy Horne picked up a chair which he swung over his head intending to strike his tormentor, but Summers was in action with the ever-ready hatchet and felled the intoxicated man to the floor with one blow from the weapon, after which he finished his ghastly deed and made sure of Horne's death by striking him three more times with the sharp edge | be begun against their owners for violation of the treacherous tool, and fled from the house, bidding his wife al hasty good-bye and grabbing his hat and coat on the run.

The police were notified and Bicyclemen Hull and Griffin were soon on the scene but were unable to find the murderer, nor · could they trace him from the house to any particular locality, and it is thought that he boarded a passing freight train and left the city.

The City Dispensary ambulance, in charge of Drs. Sheek and Seaton, arrived at the ouse with the police and removed the en, who was not at that time dead, alough he was beyond any possible chance covery, to the City Hospital, where he in a short time

The police department was after the slayer of Horne within a few minutes after the affair was discovered. Captain Hyland and Sergeant Sandman were among the first arrivals and directed the search for Summers. Detectives Coibert and Hauser were detailed to the case, in addition to the different details of police, and every patrolman in the city had a description of Summers within an hour after he committed the murder. But the hour's start may have been enought to enable Summers to get far beyond the boundaries of the city. It is the opinion of the police that he will be caught wherever he goes, as the description of the man is so complete that it would be impossible for him to escape detection if once seen by an experienced sleuth.

WOMAN TELLS OF MURDER. Mrs. Summers, when seen last night, did | that bad. not appear to take the murder of her brother at all to heart, and stood within a few feet of the spot where his life's blood operators towards the unions is very bitter. had clotted on the floor and told of the It is impossible to ascertain the exact conmurder with a tearless eye. She said her dition of the miners for the reason that husband was a man of vicious temper, and union officials or delegates are arrested if if pressed too hard would invariably start | they trespass on the ground of the opera fight. Her brother, whose death she did ators. Mr. Lewis is very reticent in regard not seem to mourn in the least, was, she to his work in the district and what he acsaid, a drinking man, and had often been in trouble before. When asked who she blamed for the affair she said she did not know. One was possibly as much to blame as the other, as far as she was able to tell. She said she attempted to stop the fight before it went so far, but was unable to do so, and decided that the best thing she could do was to let the men finish it between them. Summers, the murderer, is a blacksmith and has been in the employ of the Chandler & Taylor Company for some time, and while known for his bad temper, has always been considered an energetic and faithful workman. Horne, the murdered man, was a laborer, and aside from his noprious reputation for dissipation, has been known as a good-natured and jovial fellow. When under the influence of liquor he was always inclined to become somewhat churiish, and at times would provoke a fight. Captain Hyland said last night that he had no doubt that Summers would be apprehended before he left Indianapolis very many miles behind, and does not think it possible for him to go any great distance before he is detected. All the interurban lines and railroads were notified last night. as soon as the nature of the crime was ascertained, to be on the lookout for the man, and most of the towns and cities in this and adjacent States were communicated with by telephone and telegraph and given a description of the fleeing murderer. DEPUTY CORONER THERE.

Deputy Coroner Geis, who was on the scene of the murder almost as quickly as the police, said the brains of the blacksmith's victim had oozed from the wounds in his head to the floor, where the dying man lay until removed to the hospital.

The hatched wielded by the blacksmith cut a gash across the left eye of the victim, another across the left cheek and two blows on top of the head finished the job. Every effort to save the life of the injured man proved futile and the hospital doctors who worked for an hour on the dying man were compelled to cease their exertions. Mrs. Summers was notified of the condition of her brother by the doctors, who were first called from the Dispensary, and merely said that she did not know where her husband would go, but was positive that he would leave the city if he could get away from the police.

Until early this morning the police whe worked on the case had not found the least clew as to the man's whereabouts, but the country for miles around will be searched and the police of other cities near by are guarding the railroads to prevent Summers from escaping from the State.

Barron, of uth Bentl, president of the New Albany Water, Light and Power Company, has ome to Indianapolis to make this city his headquarters for the syndicate, which is closing contracts with some Indiana coal mining companies for their slack and refuse. It is the purpose to erect power houses at the mines and convert this waste material into electricity, which will be sold to cities within a radius of 100 miles. The plans of the syndicate, it is announced, are not fully matured.

FIEND FOR CIGARETTES.

Arthur J. Miller, of Terre Haute, Before Judge Stubbs.

In the Juvenile Court yesterday Judge Stubbs declared that a law ought to be passed making it a penal offense for any person to sell cigarettes to any boy under twenty-one years of age. The judge had in mind the case of Arthur J. Miller, who appeared before him charged with loitering. The small boy is from Terre Haute and had run away from his home. The lad is a cigarette fiend and his mind has become affected by the habit so that when brought into the courtroom he was unable to look any one in the face. The court said that unless he is put in some place where he cannot gratify his appetite he would be demented or a corpse before he was twentyone. The boy's parents were notified.

THERE SEEMS TO BE MORE ANIMALS THIS YEAR, THAN LAST.

Controller Breunig Expects to Issue at Least Two Thousand More Licenses.

Are there more dogs in Indianapolis than there were last year? City Controller Breunig, who issues dog licenses, cannot answer this question. But there are some questions about dogs and dog licenses the city controller can answer.

He says there will be fully 2,000 more dogs licensed this year, from June 1 to June 1, 1904, than last year. Whether this indicates that the dog population of Indianapolis has increased during the last twelve months cannot be told. There is no way of telling now. But Mr. Breunig says the increase in the number of licenses issued may be due entirely to the efforts of the police to enforce more rigidly the dog license ordinance, and that there may not be any more dogs Three thousand and eight dog licenses have been issued since June 1. This is an increase of 1,100 over the number issued in the corresponding period last year. Last year there were nearly 5,000 dog licenses ssued. From these figures and the large increase this year Mr. Breunig figures that he will put out fully 2,000 more licenses by next June than he did last year. The police force is canvassing the city to find out, if possible, the number of dogs owned here. The animals are listed by families, and after a certain time, if they have not been licensed by Mr. | Breunig, prosecution will of the city ordinance.

Vice President Thomas Lewis, who has been in Virginia and Kentucky for the past two weeks, was at his office yesterday. Mr. Lewis spent about half his time in the New River and Loop Creek district of West Virginia, where mine operators are refusing to recognize the unions. BARBERS' HEADQUARTERS.

National Union Will Soon Have Offices in Indianapolis.

The International Union of Journeymen Barbers is making active preparations for the removal of its head offices from Cleveland to this city. Word has been received from Cleveland to the effect that the headquarters will be fully established in Indianapolis by the 1st of August. The barbers refuse to make known the location of the head offices. However, it is known that they will be located on Market street, somewhere between Delaware and Illinois

National Secretary W. E. Klapetzky will be in the city soon to make the final arrangements for the transfer of the exentive offices. The journeymen barbers have unions throughout the United States and Canada, and a total membership of about 20,000.

COUNCIL GIVES A BODY BLOW TO THE CRALL ORDINANCE.

It Would Injure the Business Interests of the City to Make Trains Stop at All Crossings.

PESTHOUSE

APPROPRIATION

CONTROLLER BREUNIG MAKES REQUEST FOR $10,000.

Pennsylvania Road Given Authority to Build a Sidetrack 3,500 Feet Long-Other Matters.

An ordinance calling for an appropriation of $10,000 with which to establish a new pesthouse was introduced in Council last night by Controller Breunig. No action was taken on the measure.

The most important action of the Council was the killing of the Crall ordinance to require all trains to come to a dead stop at all street crossings and at all street-car tracks. The ordinance was stricken from the files by a vote of 10 to 6. The city will have to buy a new site for the pesthouse, it is understood. It is thought the land now owned by the city cannot be used for the site of the new pesthouse without violation of the law passed by the last Legislature. Controller Breunig's ordinance states that the $10,000 asked for is to be expended for the purchase of real estate and the erection of buildings for the care and treatment of patients who have contagious diseases. Five thousand two hundred and sixty-three dollars of last year's appropriation of $13,500 for a pesthouse is still available, according to an opinion of | maintaining a nuisance.

In its petition to the controller asking for a pesthouse cannot be built within 1,500 feet of a hospital and within 500 feet of a private residence.'

THE CRALL ORDINANCE. The Democrats put up a fight for the passage of Councilman Crall's ordinance requiring trains to stop at street crossings and street-car tracks. The Democrats would not abide by the report of the special committee appointed to investigate the results of the proposed ordinance. The committee reported that the passage of the ordinance would be detrimental to the commercial and other interests of the city. As soon as the report was read Mr. Eppert, one of the committee, moved that it be adopted. Mr. Berry moved that the report be laid on the table. This motion was defeated and the report was adopted. Berry then made a motion that the ordinance be called up for second reading and placed on passage. The motion was seconded and the ordinance was read. The vote stood 10 to 6 against passage, and the Crall ordinance was killed The report of the committee which investigated the results of the ordinance is in nance would be a serious detriment to the commercial interests of the city. It would seriously delay prompt and efficient moveice to the public. The enforcement of this ordinance would seriously delay mail trains and would hinder prompt delivery of ex-press. Strict enforcement of the ordinance would result in blockading a great many street crossings in the heart of the city. The ordinance would work a hardship upon railroad employes. We recognize in this ordinance some very good things, but in its major parts it is so unreasonable that it could not be enforced. The committee was composed of Eppert, Sourbier, Wysong, Wheeler and Wolsiffer, The latter was the only Democratic member of the committee.

An ordinance was passed granting the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in its operation of the Indianapolis & Vincennes Railroad, the right to build a sidetrack 3,-500 feet long, from its present siding a few feet east of Miller street, southwest to a connection with the I., D. & W. siding at Sellers farm. The new track will cross Miller, Minnesota, Harding, Blaine and Reisner streets.

Dr. Geis, who is making an analysis of the stomach of the man, said last night that he was unable at the present time to state whether the stomach contained any poison or not, but in his opinion the man died from hemorrhage of the stomach caused by a appearance and took on a more serious askick or a blow rather than from the effects of any poison. MRS. PRATT AND HER DAUGHTERS WENT TO BOY'S RESCUE.

Young Scion of the House of Prat Tumbled Into the River at Riverside, Causing Consternation.

Riverside Park's atmosphere of gayety and lively picnic parties, and throngs of polfers was unceremoniously disturbed yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock by the plunging of an entire family into the water after a boy. Mrs. G. C. Pratt, of 1624 North New Jersey street, and her family of two daughters and a six-year-old son, Charley, had gone to the park for an outing. The boy, with the true instinct of a youthful explorer, was playing on an old raft that floated between the boat and bridge. His mother had tried for over an hour to get the child off the lumber, but he kept on.

In a short time a splash and a yell announced that young Charles had fallen into the water, which is about four feet deep at that place.
